History of Laketon.

THE following papers upon the history of Laketon were written by members of the second year class who complete the work in General History this year. The purpose in writing the papers was to have them see that we have real history right here among us and also have them learn what it means to write history.

They found very few documents, consequently had to get most of their facts from the older residents. All seemed glad to aid the pupils in every way. If mistakes have been made, written corrections and additions are invited. It is the purpose to carry on this work more extensively next year and have a history of the entire township. We ask the aid of all who are interested, especially the older residents. Each teacher is expected to work up a history of his or her district next year.

History of the Laketon School.

BY LEONARD DICKEY.

HISTORY is the growth of a people or an institution. So, in writing the history of the Laketon School, I shall endeavor to trace the development of the school, from the rudest of schools consisting of one teacher and forty or fifty scholars, to a school with five teachers and one hundred and seventy-five scholars.

The first school-house was built at Laketon about 1850. It was a very small structure consisting of one room. They had from four to five months of school, the teachers receiving from $1.25 to $1.50 per day. The master (as he was then called,) kept school instead of teaching as is now done. There were but very few women teachers at that time. They received a smaller salary than did the masters.

They did not teach Physiology or History and had the same program in the afternoon as they did in the forenoon. The school gradually increased in numbers until the trustee was obliged to build an addition. The building was simply made longer, having one room as before. The Township could not afford to put in a partition. After one year's work, the teacher found that he could not do the work alone, so he was permitted to get an assistant. The assistant was not required to get a license, nor was he hired by the trustee, HE received his pay from the principal. Finally the township raised enough money to put in a partition in the house.

H. P. Wenzel, principal 1870-71, afterwards studied medicine, went to St. Louis and became a famous physician.

In 1872, when G. W. Amos and Daniel Funderburg were teaching the school, a very novel episode, to us now, occurred. It was the costum at that time for the teachers to treat the scholars on the last day of school. Mr. Funderburg, who was the primary teacher, treated his scholars with candy and apples; but Mr. Amos treated his scholars very differently. He gave the girls candy, etc., but for the boys he got a large bucket of cider and put a quart of whiskey in it. They played town-ball and drank cider and whisky until they all felt rather frisky. W. L. Moyer, who assisted D. Funderburg, is now one of directors of the American Trust and Saving's Bank, in Chicago.

Alias Stoneburner, who was Principal during the terms of 1874-75, 1875-76, is now a Justice of the Peace in Jackson Township, Kosciusko County, Indiana. The old school-house was very crowded when Mr. Stoneburner taught his first term; but by the time his last had expired, the school had grown so much that the old shell was too small to contain the school. Then, like "The Chambered Nautilus," it built itself a more stately mansion.

The people objected greatly to the building of a new school house. They insisted on building another addition to the old one. But the men in authority considered it more wise to build a new one. In the year of 1877 the Trustee proceeded, very much against the will of some people, to erect the schoolhouse which is the one now in use. The house was partitioned into three rooms and three teachers were then employed.

During the term of 1878-79, Loren Jordan was principal. He is now one of the most prominent doctors of North Manchester. A few High School subjects were introduced in the school during Mr. Jordan's principalship.

The school is greatly indebted to Prof. Geo. E. Long, now Superintendent of LaGro Schools, as he did a great deal to establish a High School Course. We see he was very successful for in the year of 1883 he graduated a class of four: Anna Funderburg, Martin Grisso, William Scott, and Rose Funderburg. They had a fine commencement, Mar. 10, 1883. The program consisted of music by the North Manchester Orchestra and an essay by each one of the graduates. The following year Prof. Long graduated another class. He taught the school with grand success for four years.

In 1890 there was a partition put in up-stairs dividing it into two rooms. Four teachers were then employed. Four teachers managed the school until 1896 when an Assistant Principal was put in the school. Thus we see that on an average there has been an increase of one teacher for every ten years.

After Prof. Long left the school, the High School work gradually died out. For many years, the only work done was a little work in Algebra and Physical Geography. This is very remarkable when we consider the flourishing condition in which Prof. Long left the school.

During the term of 1895-96, when Mr. U. R. Young was principal, there were four High School pupils. It was during this term that the new County High School Course was adopted in the school. In the year 1896 the school was again very fortunate. It succeeded in getting Prof. Chas. I. Kerr and wife, graduates of the State Normal and of the State University, to take the position of Principal and Assistant Principal. They remodeled the course of study and made many other improvements during the year. There were nineteen pupils who attended the High School during this term.

In 1897, the attendance was so large that one teacher, Mr. White, had to use the Town Hall as a school room. Mr. Kerr has worked very hard during the year to build up the library and start a museum. By furnishing the school with books, papers by lectures and by subscriptions from the patrons, he has raised about $125 for the library.

The old school building was condemned by an authorized architect in the spring of 1897. On account of the smallness and the danger of the house, the Trustee decided to erect a new one. The new building is a very beautiful structure. In the basement there are two rooms for the science laboratories. On the first floor there is a large assembly room, a recitation room, and the trustee's office. On the second floor there are three school rooms and a room for the library and museum. The attendance this term is nearly twice as large as it was last year. There are thirty-two pupils enrolled. The lecture course has been very successful.

There is nothing now that can hinder Laketon High School from competing with any school in the country. There is no better way to see the developement of the school than to imagine you see the little, low, flat, frame school-house standing by the side of this new, magnificent building.

When we look around and see our wonderful school privileges, we can do no more than to look up to our Government with hearts full of thanks and gratitude. The one object of our life should be that we live worthy of this wonderful age of civilization and progress. Our first duty is to raise our own community up to a level with that of the highest. As young people we can do this best by taking the full High School course and doing the work vigorously and thoroughly.

The Business Interests of Laketon.

BY HUGH WELLS.

LAKETON was laid out in the year 1836 by Hugh Hanna, Isaac Thomas, and Jacob D. Cassett, and was made the voting place soon afterwards. At that time it was simply a point on the old Indian trail down Eel river from North Manchester and consisted of a few log cabins, a blacksmith shop owned by Alexander Duncan and the mill just below built by James Cox. The first merchants of the place were Ira Burr and William Johnson. Afterwards George Neff was a merchant having his store in what is now Jacob Casper's house, where Mr. Adams lives. John Smith about 1850 had a store at the same place. Later Mr. Comstock had a store across the street, south from where John Smith's store was.

Dr. Bender and his son had a dry goods and drug store combined, 1859. George Bender, his brother David, and Robert I. Cox were proprietors of a dry goods store, 1865-66. About this time, 1866, D. Lotzenhiser and William Daily owned a grocery store. J. Blummer was a merchant in this place then. David Ward and Mr. Patezel had a dry goods store, 1871. Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Patezel had a millinery store about the same time. Robert Thompson and Mr. McForst each had a dry goods and grocery store combined, 1874-75. M. Sholty bought the store of McForst and in 1882, John Ward purchased it of Mr. Sholty. Charles Ogden had a store and later V. Fites bought it of him. J. D. Getttnger bought out Mr. Fites and later sold to M. J. Ulsh who is a merchant here at the present time. A. C. Huggins had a grocery store which was sold to F. Day in 1895 and burned by the fire on May 1, 1896. N. K. Nelson is a merchant here. Robert Thompson closed his mercantile business in the summer of 1897.

The carpenters during the early history of Laketon were: William Johnson of 1839, William Fogerty, George Shaffer, Levi Miller, and Henry Ogden. Daniel Brown used to be a carpenter here. The carpenters who are here now, are: Isaac Smoke, D. Ramp, and S. Grisso. The barbers who were here at different times were: F. Debolt, R. Nagle, C. Downey, Mr. Jeffry, George Webber, and H Smith. R. Nagle is barber here at the present time.

The blacksmiths who were formerly here, are: Peter Hager, Peter Hawk, Harve Crill, Mr. Kegg, Holmes Harmon, Luther Jones, Mr. Rodgers, Joseph Yantess, and William Siberts, with Mr. Davis at the forge at present. The silversmith here is John Egnew; he is also Justice of the Peace. The Justices before him were: Lewis B. Musselman 1854, Elias Lotzenhiser being the constable under him. Alexander Duncan was Justice of the Peace before Mr. Musselman. Others: Thomas Meranda, George Amiss, Lewis Keagle, and Mr. West.

The coblers who have been here are: James Hughes, Hayden Ogden 1857, Isaac Petre 1862, Perry Warren, Benjamin Baker, Samuel Grisso, Albert Myers, G. Cowgill, Mr. Buby; the latter's shop was burned. Samuel Moore is proprietor of the shop that is here. The butchers who have been here are: Mr.Tyner, J.Keller, J.Steller, S.Mylin,C.Moyer,and R.Thompson. J. and James West have a meat market here at present.

Township Trustee, H. H. Shipley is having a very nice school building erected; Mr. Woolman is contractor. The following men have served as trustees: C. Gerlach, Alexander Chinworth, Daniel Smith, George Amiss, and A. C. Huggins. The following are the names of the doctors who have resided here: Drs. P. Bender, Wm. Marshall, Depew, Clymer, Miner, Sampson, and Waddell. The doctors here at the present time are: Dr. H. C. Mooney and Dr. W. Y. Wells.

The Post Masters have been: Dr. Depew, George Shaffer about 1859, Robert Thompson, A. C. Huggins, Arthur Ward, George Bender, Henry Ogden, and George Ogden who is Post Master at the present.

George Bender and his brother had a drug store 1865, afterwards being conducted by George Bender and R. I. Cox. John Mohler had a drug store. Dr. Bender had a drug store. George Bender has a drug store here now.

Mrs. Lowery kept the first hotel in Laketon, and afterwards L. P. Kampbell kept a hotel. Each of the following persons used to keep hotels:- Mr. D. Lotzenhiser, Mr. William Henry, and Mrs. Henry Ogden. Mr. Bender keeps a boarding house at the present time. Bowersock, Harter and Co. were proprietors of the grist mill in 1853. It afterwards was owned by Strauss and Tilman, Strauss and Hunter, and Strauss and Webber. Dehuff and Keiser are the millers now. Mr. Musselman was the tanner in 1850, and Mr. Gerlach was the tanner about 1874. The first nurserymen were Mr. Geo. Moyer and Mr. B. Cook. They dissolved partnership and Mr.Moyer now owns it and is doing a large and flourishing business.

The Chicago and Erie R. R. was built through this place in 1882. The depot has recently been moved east of the river. The Standard Oil Company built their station here about 1889. The men who work there are,—Arthur Ward and E. Herman, the telegraph operators; J. Horning and F. Flack, the engineers; W. Sherwood and S. Henry are the firemen; B. Dunn is master machinist. F. Martin and C. W. Moyer are also employed by the Standard Oil Company. The fire that happened on May 1, 1896 was very disastrous to Laketon; it burned Bugby's shoe shop, Steller's Meat market, Day's grocery store, and Mr. Rudy's dwelling house.

Social Life of Laketon.

BY ORRILL DAY.

LAKETON, the principal village of Pleasant Township, is situated between Eel River and Round Lake, a clear, sparkling sheet of water. Long Lake is situated a little north of the town. The site of the town was surely selected because of its beautiful surroundings. The town was laid out by Hugh Hanna, Isaac Thomas, and Jacob Cass, on the eighth day of Sept., 1836. Soon after it became the voting place of the township.

During the earlier part of the town's history, hunting was the most important enjoyment. Corn-huskings, wood-choppings, log-rollings, apple-cuttings, barn-raisings, and parties were the social affairs. A man would gather his corn, then he would announce that he was going to have a husking-bee. Every one that heard of it considered himself invited. The others were on the same plan, only the people waited for an invitation. After the work was completed, the young people indulged in dancing and merry-making.

The people, those that had clothes sufficient to go, attended church very regularly. Traveling, then, was mostly on horseback, sometimes two or three on one horse. These times are called "The good old times." At these merry-makings, drinking intoxicating liquor was carried on to an extent that could hardly have been compatible with good morality, but either the exposure of backwoods life or the less poisonous quality of the article consumed, renderd its effects less pernicious than at the present time. At a wedding, liquor was the center of good cheer; at a funeral, the solace of mourning friends. At any gathering its presence was considered one of the indispensable requisites of true hospitality.

The arrival of a new settler in a neignborhood was an item of interest to every one. After a new-comer would arrive, a log-rolling would be sure to follow. This was looked forward to, by the young people with great anxiety. When the time for the merry-making arrived, a queer looking crowd it was that assembled there. To a crowd of the young folks of to-day they would appear very strange, for some still wore the deer-skin skirts and buck-skin moccasins of the savage. Others were clad in home-spun linen. Hats varied all the way from the home-made skull-cap of raccoon or wolf skin, to the cocked hat of the grenadier. But the men varied still more widely than did their dress. There were the old frontiersman who had spent a lifetime in the wilderness, fighting Indians and wild beasts; the Yankees, fresh from the far down east; the Quakers, from the land of William Penn; Germans, from the fatherland; Pat and Michael, from the "Ould counthry", were also present. These men were not only neighbors, but warm, true friends.

Pitching horse shoes and wheeling a wheel-barrow at a stake were games practiced about 1853. The man, that was to wheel the wheel-barrow was blindfolded and given a wheel-barrow to run at the stake, if he struck the stake a prize was awarded him, turkeys were mostly the prizes given. Pitching horse shoes was a game that any number might take par in, only they had to play partners, one at either end of the ground. The horse shoes were pitched as close around the stake, or over it if possible. Each throw was counted so much.

About 1888 a Literary and Debating Society was organized under the leadership of Miss Lulu Keagle. The first Dramatic Club was conducted by Mr. Nelson Hunter, and played "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." The next club was organized by Mr.

John Thompson. They played "The Charcoal Burner". In 1892, led by Miss Georgia Duncan, "The Danger Signal" was played. The evening of Feb. 6, 1894, Mr. George Ogden conducted "Placer Gold". In 1895, "Force of Impulse" and "Gyp, the Heiress" were given. Then in 1896, "Botany Bay" and "Uncle Jack", by the same person, were played, which ended the plays.

Festivals, singing and spelling schools were first known about 1848-68. Some of the singing school masters of Laketon were Mr. Boyd Stanly, T. Sowers, A. C. Huggins, and John Shafer. The notes then in use were known as the "Buckwheat" notes. Mr. Nelson Hunter and Mr. E. T. Hadin taught writing in Laketon about 1865-66.

10. Vitale Concert Company. March 4.
11. High School Entertainment, consisting of short plays and music. March 25.

Debating Club.

The character of the debating done the past year was excellent and much ability was shown by the different members. This is a work which tends to bring out a pupil's individuality as much, if not more, than any other part of his school work. One interesting feature of our debating is the fact that the young ladies take part as freely and do equally as well as the young men.

Entertainment Club.

The High School and Eighth Grade gave a literary and musical entertainment, Oct. 23, which was a grand success in every particular. It opened people's eyes to the fact that the Laketon High School is made up of an enterprising lot of young people of much talent and ability. This was done without any special organization. They have now organized a regular Club and are planning an entertainment for the close of the school that is to far surpass the other. The proceeds, $20, of the first entertainment were used in paying for a new high school organ.

Library.

A well selected library is an indispensable part of a well regulated high school. At present the library contains over 500 volumes, including all reference books and reading circle books. At the beginning of this year two librarians were appointed and all books belonging to the school were carefully classified and arranged, so as to be readily accessible. About 200 volumes have been added within the year. About $125 have been spent. Of this amount $30 in cash and $11 worth of books were given by the people of Laketon and the township. All the pupil's reading circle books for the year 1897-98, were purchased, and pupils who read the books are given a membership card which greatly increases the interest in reading in the grades.

We know of no better university within easy reach of all than good books, and such a silent university ought to be accessible to all our pupils, that a love of good reading might be cultivated. The American High School should aim to teach its pupils to be readers, for four reasons: First, to acquire knowledge both for its own sake and for its use; second, to improve the intellectual powers; third, to refine the tastes; fourth, to strengthen the moral and religious sentiment.

Books are not dead things, but contain a progeny of life which like the fabulous dragon's teeth being sown up and down the earth may chance to bring up "an army of armed men". In the best books great men talk to us, giving to us their most precious thoughts and pour their souls into ours.

More attention should be given to the subject of general and direct reading. The text book tends to deaden and contract if there is not given a wider range to the subject under consideration; so will the education of the boys and girls wither and die if they have not acquired a love for reading good books, books in which they are interested. We feel that no time should be lost in putting a library of carefully selected books into the hands of our boys and girls in all departments and grades of our school. If the same interest and zeal continues to be manifested, by the help of the school board, Laketon will soon have a library which will be a credit to herself and of incalculable benefit to her public schools.

Museum.

A good start has been made this year in collecting specimens for a museum. A good museum is an in valuable aid to a high school and to the grades and district schools as well. The purposes in collecting the museum are to reinforce the science work, to create a love for and a close observation of nature, to have objects to illustrate points as they come up in different subjects all through the grades, and to have the pupils learn the important facts of nature in their own immediate neighborhood.

It is the aim to slowly collect specimens to illustrate the geology, the botany, the zoology, etc. of Pleasant township. To this end we ask the cooperation of the teachers, pupils, and all others who are interested. We aim to get specimens from a distance by exchanging with other schools, and by the donating or lending of specimens by the friends of the school.

The Importance of the High School.

This branch of the public schools has grown from its feeble beginning a few years ago until it now stands, no longer "an experiment" in your midst but an established factor destined to accomplish great good. The high school was attended not only by residents of the school district but by persons living in different parts of the township and county. The enrollment for the year was thirty-two.

The character of the work done the past year was very satisfactory. The great interest shown in this branch of the public schools by both pupils and patrons speaks volumes for the general intelligence of the people and shows their appreciation of its influence.

While the high school has made great advancement and in one sense has reached its ideal it must not stop with its present attainments but must seek to accomplish a higher good, year by year. The next step in advance is to make it a commissioned high school, secure more apparatus, enlarge its library, and increase the museum. At present there are about one hundred and ten commissioned high schools in the state. The advantages arising from a school of this kind are too numerous to mention and are of incalculable value. Why not since it is possible and practicable give the boys and girls who finish here the advantage of the best high school possible.

"It has been truly said that the return to the public and to every individual upon an investment in a high school is rich and abundant. It is the center of elevating influence, drawing up all the lower schools, awakening the ambition of the young, and making for the ambitions a way to the "career open to talent". More than any other agency it raises the average intelligence, and the general tone of thought and manners, sends into the homes of the people disciplined minds, enlarged views, refined tastes, and somewhat of that admirable but indefinable condition of mind called culture.

The high school is one of the essentials to the dignity of the community in which it is located, and the well-being of the citizens. It is the goal to which every child from the time he enters school may confidently hope, look, and labor to attain."

Admission.

Pupils are required to obtain the common school diploma before taking up the high school work.

Diploma.

Pupils finishing either of the courses in a satisfactory manner and writing a suitable thesis will be granted a diploma indicating the course pursued and the work done. If we can lengthen the school term to seven and one half months, we can have our school commissioned. The diploma will then be equal to that of any high school in the state. Possibly it can be done next year.

Eighth Grade.

Pupils ready to do eighth grade work are permitted to attend at Laketon. They are urged to do so because of the many advantages. The class is large and imbued with the high school spirit of doing hard thorough work. The recitation periods are much longer than can be possible in the district schools. The eighth grade is treated in every respect as a part of the high school. The drills in music, drawing, writing and spelling are very helpful. The library and reference books together with the museum will be valuable aids. But above all stands the scientific laboratory work in physiology.

Athletics.

Out-door games are encouraged. They give strength and agility to the body and at the same time cultivate strength and alertness of the mind. As a rule the one who is active and enthusiastic in out-door games, is the most eager and enthusiastic student during study hours. Field day exercises are in contemplation. It is the intention to keep a record of the events and then try to surpass it next year.

FIELD DAY.

Field day exercises were held March 13. The following is a list of the events, names of winners, and records. First place counts five points, second three, and third one.

School History.

This was formerly known as the Dixon School, but with the advent of the railroad and the laying out of the town, it received its present name. The school-building now in use was built in 1880. The old school-house is still standing being used at present as a dwelling house.

But few have ever done much eighth year work here principally on account of the proximity of the Laketon school. As far as can be learned the pupils mentioned above are the only ones who have graduated directly from this school.

Historical.

Until the year 1883 the Disko School was undivided. That year there were sixty-five pupils. J. Q. Shipley who was then teaching, was assisted by his wife, a very able primary teacher. The next year, Miss Bigler taught the primary pupils in the old school-house, while Mr. Gardner taught the older pupils in the hall. The next year, the new school-house being completed, Mrs. J. Q. Shipley was the first teacher to take charge of the primary room. She taught two terms, followed by Miss Edna Hunter. Miss Emma Nelson was the next primary teacher employed, followed by Mrs. Robert Branegan in 1889 who has since been instructor with the exception of three years during which time Mrs. C. I. Kerr taught in the primary division.

School began in this district in about 1848 in an old log house. In 1859 a new frame house was built and the old log house was abandoned. In 1875 our present brick house was built. This has been a large school the greater portion of the time since 1872, numbering from twenty-five to fifty-one pupils enrolled.

The school-house called South Pleasant, is located three miles south of Silver Lake. About 1840, one-fourth acre of land was bought of a man by the name of Shellenbarger. The following year a log school-house was built. This house stood till about 1857 when a frame house was built on the same ground. In 1878 another quarter of an acre of land was purchased of Will Platter, making the amount of school-ground one-half acre. The next year, 1879, our present brick school-house was built. The following is a list of the teachers who have taught in this district.

Historical.

The first school-house in the district was a log house, 18x22 feet, built in 1846 or 47. It was located three-fourths of a mile south-west of the present building. The first teacher was David Thompson, whose salary was $12 per month.

The second house was a farm building. It was built in 1860, and was located just across the road north of where the school-house now stands.

The third house was a brick and was built in 1880 on the site of our present house; but the workmanship was so poor that it could only be used three years. It was rebuilt in 1884 with a little addition and a few changes in its structure.

School History.

The old school building in District No. 8 was located on the southwest corner of the farm owned by Mr. Horace Rager. The building in present use is a brick structure and was built by Trustee Tobias Gushard in the year 1881. The site chosen was about twenty rods west of the first building and on the south side of the public road. Mr. J. W. Smith was teacher of the first school taught in the new building.

Historical.

The first school-house built in this district was located about one mile south of where the present building stands. It was built about 1848. There have been three buildings on the present site. The first, a log building, was built about 1850. The second, a frame building, was built about 1870. The third was built in 1882 and is still in use.

The German Baptist Brethren have held religious services here every month since the spring of 1895. A Union Sunday School has been held here every summer since about 1884.

School History.

The Henpeck School is located in a prosperous and energetic neighborhood; and the people have done much in advancing the interest of the school.

The present school-house is a brick building, built in the year 1882. The former one was a frame building which was located one-half mile north of the present one. John Andrews.

a well known citizen of North Manchester, now in Chicago, taught the first term of school in the frame building. Following is a list of teachers who taught in the present schoolhouse:

P. B. Pashong	1882-83	Peter Grisso	1890-91
William Barnett	83-84	Peter Grisso	91-92
Charley Brown	84-85	John Alger	92-93
